SCENARIO

Wednesday, July 12

- Chris spends 6 uneventful months in Genala
- Joe hires a number of bright young and not-so-young engineers to replace the people who died in the crash
- Chris finds himself back in his old managerial position and presents a speech at the national meeting of ASCE in Cincinnati
- A number of people compliment him on his original ideas, including Paul Marshall, an engineer from Walker Engineering, a corporation that does business mostly through subsidiaries
- They talk and exchange business cards
