

Kierra Quinn

CTA #13

12/1/15

Family:

My family would be considered middle class. We were not rich nor poor. My family was an example of the modern American family. We were not extremely religious but we did sometimes go to church when I was a child and as I got older went less frequently. We participated in the common holidays like thanksgiving, and Christmas and Easter. My family expected my siblings and I to go to college and get an education but other than that we did not have too many values that are uncommon like being opposed to drug use, or disrespecting your parents. I will raise my own family very similar to my own upbringing, I will push them to do their best which my family does. The only thing that I would change was how unsupportive my father was.

Feldman, Robert S. Lifespan Development: A Topical Approach. Harlow: Pearson Education, 2010. Print.

