

Chapter 13

Creating and Managing a Literacy Program

This multimedia product and its contents are protected under copyright law. The following are prohibited by law:

- any public performance or display including transmission of any image over a network;
- preparation of any derivative work, including the extraction, in whole or in part, of any images;
- any rental, lease, or lending of the program.

© 2010 Pearson Education, Inc. All rights reserved.

Chapter 13 Anticipation Guide

Anticipation Guide

For each of the following statements related to the chapter you are about to read, put a check under "Agree" or "Disagree" to show how you feel. Discuss your responses with classmates before you read the chapter.

1. Students should be grouped heterogeneously rather than homogeneously for reading instruction.
2. Teaching small groups of students with common needs is just about the best way to provide for individual differences.
3. Ultimate responsibility for the progress of struggling readers rests with the classroom teacher.
4. Without parental support, literacy programs have a greatly diminished chance for success.
5. Instruction in the use of the Internet should be a part of the literacy program.
6. Educators have been oversold on the educational value of technology.

Agree

Disagree

Constructing a Literacy Program

- Setting Goals
 - Student needs are primary concern
- Choosing Materials
- Selecting Techniques & Strategies
- Building Motivation
- Building a Sense of Community