

Alternative Software Life Cycle Models

By Edward R. Corner

vol. 2, chapter 8, pp. 289-299

Presented by: Gleyner
Garden

EEL6883

Software Engineering II

Feel free to interrupt!

Introduction

- The classic waterfall model that we are familiar with was developed around 1970 by Dr. Winston Royce
- Many different models have been proposed since then
- They all exist to help cope with the great complexity and expense of software products, and to help create a product that meets the user's needs and expectations

